concerned, and that it may force Japan to avail herself of her alliance with Great Britain, which provides in the event of Japan being attacked by any two powers Great Britain is bound to assist her.

The elder statesmen and the members of the cabinet held a conference yesterday which lasted five hours.

Japanese Press Bitter

The tone of the Japanese press shows increasing indignation over Admiral Rogestvenski's use of a French port in the immediate vicinity of Japan for warlike operations against an empire with which France is nominally friendly. Newspapers of all shades of opinion declare that it is wholly impossible to reconcile a procedure with any recognized principle of international law or common justice or friendship.

The paper insists that it is necessary for Japan, as a measure of self-protection, to notify France, that, as her conduct is irreconcilable with neutral obligations, Japan is unable to continue the recognition of the neutrality of ports in Coochin-China and that the whole responsibility of extending the area of the war must rest on French shoulders.

Evidently Japanese public opinion is developing a dangerous degree of heat.

ENGLAND NAMES MAN FOR PANAMA BERTH

The British ambassador has been informed by his home government that it will find pleasure in complying with the request of Secretary Taft to suggest the name of a notable engineer for appointment in consultation on Panama canal work. Ambassador Durand has been instructed to present the name of Chief Engineer Hunter, of the Manchester ship canal, which is a great work of engineering.

The French ambassador has not yet had any news as to the wishes of his government. It is rumored that friends of the former minister from Panama, M. Hunau-Vallée, desire to have him included in the list.

No determination has yet been made as to the salaries which this Government will pay the consulting engineers. It is realized that men of the first rank in their profession must be fully compensated if the Government expects to retain them. It is probable a liberal fee will be decided on, to be paid only for such periods as the consulting engineers are actually employed.

NAN PATTERSON LIKES HER JURY

Well Satisfied With Twelve Men Selected.

SAYS SO TO HER COUNSEL

"Florodora" Actress Is Confident of Acquittal and Seems Anxious for Trial to Begin.

"Well, Nan Patterson, how do you like those twelve men?" said Abraham Levy to his client when, at fifteen minutes before 8 o'clock last night, the jury box had been filled and Recorder Goff, in adjourning court until Monday morning, had admonished the jurors to converse with no one concerning the shooting of Frank T. Young, of which crime the chorus girl is accused.

"I am very much pleased with them," she responded smiling. Then she repeated this statement to her aged father, whose hand she shook heartily and whom she kissed three times before she was taken back to her cell in the Tombs, to remain until 10:30 o'clock on Monday morning when, after the opening speech of Assistant District Attorney Rand, the taking of evidence will begin.

Had Recorder Goff been less firm the jury would not have been obtained until next week.

Choosing of Jury.

The first juror accepted yesterday was Newcomb C. Barney, a mine operator, of 29 Broadway, sixty-six years old, married.

Fully a dozen talesmen were excused before Francis Vail, a retired lumber merchant, living in Fordham avenue, City Island, was accepted as the fifth juror. He was followed into the jury box by Eberhard L. Luder, thirty-seven years old, of 53 West Nineteenth street.

DIED.

Mr. Luder was the first smooth-shaven man accepted on the jury.
Walter W. Tinsley, a coal merchant, of 691 Bergen avenue, forty-nine years old, became juror No. 7, at Preston T. Lynn, manager of a big department store, and living in 151 West 14th street, took the next seat. After rejecting the next two talesmen, both sides accepted William F. Nisner, a retired builder, of 267 West 12th street, and he was sworn in as juror No. 9.

Three in Succession.

The next three jurors followed each other in succession in the witness chair. They were Robert C. Martin, sixty-one years old, of 136 Fifth avenue, dealer in building materials; David May, forty-five years old, dealer in embroideries and living in 1845 Seventh avenue, and William J. Murphy, forty-three years old, cashier, living in the Nevada apartments, Broadway and Seventieth street.

It was 8 o'clock before the last juror was accepted. The court had been in session almost six hours without interruption. In all ninety-four talesmen were examined before the jury was selected, as compared with almost two hundred men at the last trial. Forty-two of the sixty preliminary challenges allowed both sides were exhausted, the defense using twenty-four and the prosecution eighteen.

May Summon Smith.

Although Mr. Levy will not admit it, the chances are that both J. Morgan Smith and his wife will be called by the defense. Mr. Levy will first try to force Assistant District Attorney Rand to call them, and, failing to do so, will use them as his own witnesses.

It is known also that Mrs. Young, and Millin, former racing partner of Young, will not be left off as easily this time as at the last trial. Mrs. Young was not cross-examined at all when she was on the witness stand before, but this time Mr. Levy will put her through a severe questioning. Millin will be handled without gloves by Miss Patterson's attorney.
